SURREAL PROMENADE

Sergei Isupov

The exhibition Surreal Promenade brings together more than thirty remarkable sculptures by the Russian-born Sergei Isupov. Using porcelain as his preferred material, Isupov combines sculpted surfaces with illustration and masterful painting. Humans, bears, and their body parts overlap and interrupt each other, forming a single dream-like narrative. These uncanny biomorphic creatures are on a promenade that is surreal in the strict sense of the word, evoking the great tradition of European surrealism.

Sergei Isupov graduated from the Art Institute of Tallinn, Estonia, in 1990 with a BA/MFA in Ceramics. He immigrated to the United States in 1994 to pursue a career in the arts. His works can be found in numerous public and private collections, including the National Gallery of Australia, the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, and other collections.

Artworks on display are on loan from Ferrin Contemporary and the artist. The Museum of Russian Art would like to thank Ferrin Contemporary and Sergei Isupov for partnering with the museum to make this exhibition possible.

ARTIST STATEMENT

"My work portrays characters placed in situations that are drawn from my imagination but are based on my life experiences. My artworks capture a composite of fleeting moments, hand gestures, and eye movements that follow and reveal the sentiments expressed. These ideas drift and migrate throughout my work without direct regard to specific individuals, chronology, or geography."
